Thank each of you for your continued & faithful support! I beg your pardon for such a lapse in reports; explained herein.

At the beginning of the month of March; I sat down to begin writing my report for February. Once again; I began experiencing computer problems & have been plagued with them since on the new computer that I brought with me, due to the fact I knew the old one was near death. I tried one solution after another; nothing was working. Also during the beginning of March & up until now I have been down literally for almost 2 weeks not feeling well. One week total with a terrible cold/flu like bug, & then again for almost another week feeling terribly exhausted. I thought I had found the solution to my computer problems & at the computer's suggestion decided to do a "refresh" of the system; while being assured that all my personal files would be saved. Right. Never that simple. Instead it uninstalled most of my programs & all of my financial info to date. I am still working on that, so just to let you all know that my expenses will be estimated for a bit until I can get this sorted out; please be patient with me & my apologies for such a lapse in my reports, but I have simply been disabled computer wise & healthwise until now, & am still somewhat crippled.

There is even more to explain as well & instead of waiting another month to report on it; it is very important to do so now in order to further explain such a long lapse in reports. The date at the time of my writing this is April 13; Wednesday afternoon. About 2-3 months ago I had to go to the dentist next door to where I live. She couldn't give me a shot for pain because my blood pressure was too high. She warned me to go have it checked; well, I was just "too busy" and decided to wait. Well; last week on Tuesday AM in Thai class the middle of my bottom lip & my left hand began to feel numb. I told my tutor that it was odd. I finished that class; went to my afternoon class & continued to feel worse. Long story short; on Wednesday AM during a walk, my entire left side literally went numb. I had already decided that I needed to go to the hospital, but thought the walk might help the numbness. When I got in the shower; I could hardly feel the soap in my left hand due to the numbness. I went to the ER & was admitted before an MRI & X-rays. After these; they had me on the way to my room, or, so I thought. When I was rolled into my final destination, I knew from looking around that I wasn't going to a regular room, but into ICU. I spent that Wednesday, Thursday, & was discharged on Friday of last week; April 1 from the hospital. After the MRI & X-rays, during that Wednesday morning the Doctor came & told me that I was very "lucky" that I didn't have a stroke, an old stroke, the arteries in my brain were in good shape, & there was no bleeding either. I am grateful for the Lord's protection & provision even after giving me a previous warning that I ignored. Honestly; as I said I have been feeling very rundown & tired & thought it was from arising so early for work each day in Thai class & teaching English 2 days a week as well. I was wrong. This is a further explanation for such a lapse in my reports. I do beg everyone's pardon & ask your forgiveness in this matter. I am now trying to get the computer repaired completely & working on my BP too with exercise & meds.

Also...continue to pray that the Lord will give me; us, Thailand for Christ!

At the beginning of the end of March; beginning of April, I began with 2 new Thai students to learn English. Please pray for me concerning this new challenge.

Very Special Thanks & Gratitude To:

Please continue to keep me in your prayers. As of this report writing, I am still very weak from the 2 day hospital stay in ICU here in Chiang Mai & desperately need for the Lord to restore my strength. Thank you! Again; please accept my sincere apologies for such a lapse in my reporting this last 2 months. Thank you.
